REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

To the School Board, New London, N. H.:

In this, my third annual report, I believe I may say that in spite of handicaps by way of illness and necessary changes in the teaching force, there has been on the whole a steady improvement in efficiency in the general work of the schools. We have aimed to teach ideas instead of words—to get children to think instead of merely to memorize. When children talk about cubic feet, longitude, angles, etc., we want them to know what these things are. Children must not be “passed up” on “I know but I can’t tell.” We want them to know and to tell. The only way we can be sure they know is to have them tell.

In my talks with the teachers, the need of efficiency in the fine art of teaching has been the factor of school work most emphasized. The other matters of management and administration, such as organization and discipline, have, however, been kept constantly in mind.

Reading.

There is no doubt as to the fact that our reading has greatly improved during the last three years. The ability of certain grades to read intelligently has increased to such an extent that, though in most grades we have fully three times and in some grades four times as much reading material as when I first came to New London, we are now, with the school year less than two thirds gone, in need of new matter. In other words, we are reading three or four times as much now in two thirds of a year as we were in a whole year three years ago. We shall need to add to our reading list at once.

Writing.

We have this year introduced a system of muscular movement business penmanship. The laborious making of letters that exists in most public schools where the written work is at all creditable is not writing in any sense of the word. It is drawing. Too much must be done during working hours in these days to permit of any such painful process. We expect to turn out children who can really write,—who can write legibly with ease and speed.

Spelling.

We have worked out and are putting into operation in the low grades a scheme for the teaching of spelling for which we believe we may claim much merit. It is a plan of dictation and word building which will give skill not only in the mere spelling of words but in the use of words. It provides ample drill in sentence formation, capitalization, punctuation and paragraphing. In fact, it gives enough practice in the use of English to justify the belief that at least some of the things taught will get themselves fixed in the minds of the children and be built into habits. Then possibly they may be used out of school. It enlarges the vocabulary. It provides training in one other particular, and this we believe to be of especial value. It produces children who can take in, hold, and reproduce absolutely new material dictated to them.

A Ninth Grade.

I wish to call your attention to a matter of considerable importance. We are, of course, anxious that those pupils who are to continue their school life, in the academy or elsewhere, shall have as good a preparation for their work as possible. We are just as anxious that those pupils who complete their formal education with graduation from the grammar school shall have a thorough elementary training. We are trying to do in eight years with three teachers what is being done in the best schools in the same time with eight teachers. This is simply an impossible task. No three men of given ability can do as much work in an hour as eight men of the same ability. The case is too plain to permit argument.

If we wish to compete with the best schools, as of course we do, we must have more help, or we must work longer. That is, we must have more teachers, or lengthen our school course. The former I do not expect at this time. Then there is left only the lengthening of the course. This may be accomplished either by lengthening the school year to forty weeks, as is the case in most large towns and cities, or by holding the children in school for a year longer. This latter is the plan you would probably prefer.

My final word is a plea to parents to realize themselves and to emphasize to their children the value of promptness and regularity in school attendance. If parents would assume the responsibility in these matters which is inherently theirs and which the law further imposes upon them, one serious school problem would be eliminated.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE W. DICKSON.

REPORT OF CEMETERY COMMISSIONERS.

The purchase of the land for the enlargement of our present cemetery was effected and the wall was removed without expense to the town.

A portion of this addition should be cultivated and a line of lots put in shape for use as soon as possible.

Some grading next the street should be done and a temporary fence provided.

The soldiers' memorial fund has not taken shape. May we not hope for some action in this line before another year?

In the layout of the new yard provision should be made for such a monument.

Inscriptions have been placed on several stones where there were no relatives to attend to it.

The reasonableness of providing for permanent care of family lots appeals more and more to our people.

In the two cemeteries at Elkins the income of such funds is used as far as needed by the man in charge of these cemeteries.

The number of funds for perpetual care in the commissioners' hands has increased from four, three years ago, to seventeen, besides two funds held by the church.

It is often desirable to include the care of more than one lot under one fund.

Much remains to be done in grading and reseeding the older part of the yard and a few of the still neglected lots.

Your commissioners desire to express their appreciation of the cordial response to appeals made for the improvement and care of lots in all parts of the yard.

The form of receipt for perpetual care is appended to this report.
